About Swadeshi Science Movement of India

Swadeshi Science Movement of India, Delhi (SSM'D), is a registered society under the Societies Registration Act XXI of 1860. As its founding force, Prof. K. I. Vasu laid the foundation of the Swadeshi Science Movement at IISc, Bengaluru, on 7 November 1982, the birth anniversary of Sir C. V. Raman. The movement was established with the objective of promoting an indigenous and self-reliant framework for science, technology, and education in India. During his tenure as Director of CSIR-CECRI, Karaikudi, Prof. Vasu pioneered innovative models for rural development through micro and small enterprises at the block and panchayat levels. He also introduced a B.Tech. education system within CSIR laboratories well before the 1990s. Over the years, the organization has made significant contributions to the promotion of Swadeshi Science, Engineering, Technology, and Education in India by organizing numerous national and international conferences, seminars, science fairs, refresher courses, and other academic programmes. It has actively encouraged the use of Hindi and other Indian languages in scientific communication while recognizing the importance of English. SSM'D has distinguished itself from many other scientific forums and academies in the country through the publication of bilingual (Hindi and English) books, souvenirs, proceedings, and reports. Its activities and contributions have also been featured in scientific journals, magazines, and news publications, including JENT, CSIR's popular Bharatiya Vaigyanik Evam Audyogik Anusandhan Patrika, Deep Science Publishing, CSIR News Vigyan Patrika, Vigyan Pragati, and India Today, among others. The organization has also focused on upgrading the technical skills of rural artisans, tribal communities, craftsmen, and farmers. Its specialized innovation meets have promoted the integration of modern science and technology with traditional knowledge and Indigenous practices, reflecting both the spiritual and material dimensions of India's rich culture and civilization. During the last decade, SSM'D has initiated the biannual multilingual "E-Swadeshi Vigyan Patrika" and participated in national awareness campaigns, including the Swachhata Mission, through public outreach programmes. It has also contributed to national reconstruction and community-development initiatives, particularly in Uttarakhand, with the broader objective of fostering a scientifically informed, innovative, self-reliant, and socially responsible society.
